

Librarian toolkit email template - Read & Publish - 3-journal agreement

Subject line: Support for Open Access biology research

Template message:

Dear [add name]

We want to support you and your work by ensuring that you have access to a wide range of research, and that you understand the options available to publish your work Open Access (OA).

We are part of The Company of Biologists' Read & Publish initiative, which means:

- Corresponding authors wishing to publish Open Access in The Company of Biologists' transformative journals - Development, Journal of Cell Science and Journal of Experimental Biology - can do so without paying an article processing charge (APC).
- Researchers at [add your institution name] can publish an uncapped number of articles in the above journals.
- You can search and download any article from The Company of Biologists' journals including the full archive dating back to 1853.

Additionally, a tree is planted in a UK forest every time a researcher at [add your institution name] publishes a Research article or Review article with The Company of Biologists.

The Company of Biologists' guide-for-authors provides further details on how to submit your work.

To find out more about Read & Publish and your access to our Read & Publish agreement, visit [link to your intranet/internet page] or speak to [name and job title of contact].

Best wishes,

[Signature of sender]
